WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16.—Members of the National Republican Committee, which meets at the Arlington Hotel to-morrow are arriving slowly. T ey will stop as a rule at the Arlington. So far as Presidential candidates go, the supporters of Blaine appear especially hostile to holding the National Convention in Checianati, and would prefer not to have the Convention go to Saratoga.

At the latter place there are fears that Conkling's influence might make itself felt unfavorably to Blaine, and as for Cincinnati they say that the memories of the last National Convention are enough to prevent any friends of Blaine from voting to have the Convention at Cincinnati.

Judge Martindale and W. R. Holliday, of Indianapolis, are here to try and influence the selection of that city as the place for holding the convention. There are also large delegations from Chicago and Cincinnati, and one from Saratoga. Reinforcements to each delegation are expected to arrive to-day. Richard Smith, Amor Smith, W. R. Thrall, S. H. Drew and E. O. Eshelby, a delegation from Cincinnati, arrived that city.

JOURNEYMEN BREWERS.

A General Strike Threatened Here.

There has been a movement on foot for severe days among the journeymen brewers, the objet of the same being the organization of a Union of the same being the organization of a Union of Journeymen Brewers. Several meetings have already been held by this Union, to which no outsiders were admitted. On these occasions the question was discussed as to ways and means to effect an increase and unanimity in the price of wages, so that the least paid should not get less than $45 per month.

In the last but one of these meetings it was resolved to ask all local brewers to grantan advance in wages. The request was conched in the following words.

MR.—

MR.—

JOURNEYMEN BREWERS' UNION.

JOURNEYMEN BREWERS' UNION.

MR.—

DEAR SIR—You will perhaps be aware that we have formed a union of journeymen brewers, whose object is to release us from the position in which we are now placed and better our condition. As you yourself know we are situated so that we are compelled to these steps.

We have of course in our meeting resolved to beg of you to come ly with our essention, which is to the effect that a salary from $65 upward be paid to each journeyman brewer.

We hope that you will as specifive as possible answer to our just retition, as we have resolved to nold a meeting next sunday to make known to the Union the result of your actions.

Respectfully,

The Union of Journeymen Brewers.

Only four answers were received at the last

THE UNION OF JOURNEYMEN BREWERS.
Only four answers were received at the last meeting, held Sunday, December 14th, and these were from C. Moerlein, Windisch, Muhihauser & Bro., H. Lackman and John Kauffman.
To ascertain what had been done in the matter, a reporter called upon Mr. John Alexander, the President of the Union, at his residence, on Liberty aftert, mear Pum. He said that the Union had sent for the circular, printed above, to the brewery firms in this city, but that four only had answered.

Reporter—What grounds did you have to ask for an increase.

Mr. A.—We must have a salary which will enable us to lay saide something for our old age. After a journeyman brewer has been constantly at work until his fortieth year he is about played out and not fit for further use. He is then suffering with rheumatism, unfit for duty, and then, of course, discharged. If he has not saved anything he will fare biddly. But even should he be able to work he has more expenses than another laborer, as he must buy warmer and dearer clothing and water-troof by the consider a salary of $65 per month as only fair, for we must work twelve hours per day, and be on hand at 8 o'clock in the morning.

of 800 per month as only lair, for we must work twelve lours per day, and be on hand at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Reporter—What answer did the brewers give?

Mr. A.—Messrs. Windisch, Muhlhauser & Bro. and Mr. Lackman said they would give the advance asked for, provided the other brewers in the city d.d. the same. Mr. C. Moerlein wrote us a polite note, saying that it always was his principle "To live and let live," and that he is paying his men as high a salary as 't'e business allows. He must decline, however, to be interfered with in the pe sonal reamagement of his business. Mr. Kauffmann informed us that he could not comply with our requist, and that he must regulate the salary of his men as cording to the price of beer. The latter will not allow him to give the advance. I object, positively, however, to having our salaries regulated by the price of beer, because it is none of our business that the brewers are mutually cutting their throats.

Reporter—What will the Union do if the salar.

throats.

Reporter-What will the Union do if the sale

Reporter—What will the Union do if the salaries are not increased?

Mr. A.—Then we will strike.

Reporter—Will this be universal?

Mr. A.—Yes. We have two hundred and sixty-four journeymen brewers in our Union—more than one-half of all the men employed in the brewerie, At the last meeting many all the formmen werd present and sympallized with our cruse. We believe that it we do not succeed now we never will. Our Secretary, Mr. Julius Zirn, has been instructed to not fy in writing all breweries that our settle will extend over the whole country, and that no one will be sent here, if we do strike do strike.

Reporter—When is the strike set for?

Mr. A.—We have appointed Messrs. Frank Dels, F. Goebel and A. Ste die as a committee to vis t the browers to day and ask them to give us the raise. We will be id a meeting Friday evening to near the 1 reports.

Rejorter—Do you think you will succeed in vone purpose?

Reporter—Do you think you will succeed in your purpose?

Mr. A.—We hope so, for the brewers can not hold back as long as other business firms.

This ended the interview.

One of the most prim nent brewers was visited next. He said that the demand for a raise was unnumely. The cost of producing beer has recently increased, and it looks as if we are not going to get an loc crop this winter. If this is the case, our expenses for the next year will be greater still. Then there is the advance in freight rates. The request, therefore, is untimely. He would not camply with the men's request. Their places could be filled by any one picked up on the streets. We need only a few skilled hands, and we can go right ahead.

The brewers will hold a meeting this evening and discuss the question in all its details. The brewers will held a meeting this evening and discuss the question in all its details.

THE PRICE MURDER TRIAL

Major Blackburn Threatened by the Prisoner -- Big Excitement in Court.

Major Hisckburn began his argument in the Villie Black murder case, and after speaking some time, mentioned the following:

That the mother of the prisoner died insane, and remarked that the evidence failed to show that fact: that she died on her knees praying: that when she was old, seventy-five years of age, she but she did not find shelter with him, but had to go to the home of George Walton.

The prisoner at this point rose, and with violent gestures was atten-pring to approach the counsel, and had a be held back by the criminal balliff and several others in the court-room. He exclaimed, "Major Blackburn, it is not right for you to talk that way about my mother. I will protect my mother; I took care of her." The whole court-room was in a state of confusion. Major Blackburn suspended his argument for several minutes. Finally the prisoner was compelled to sit down, and the argument then proceeded. Major Blackburn w.ll close his argument before the Court adjourns.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Of Judge Payette Smith's Son.

Fayette Smith, Jr., the nineteen-year-old con of Judge Fayette Sn. ith, of the Court of Common Pleas, was found dead in bed this morning at the family residence, No. 430 West Seventh street.
There is something mysterious in the young man's death. He was quite despondent last night, and at 9 o'clock, or a little after, went to bed in a gloomy condition of mind.

At an early bour this morning his father called him for breakfast, but he received no answer. He thought nothing of it for the moment, and the family took breakfast.

Young Fayette slept with his little brother, and when the latter did not come down also, Judge Smith became alarmed, broke open the door of his son's room and found his son dead.
The bed was covered with ngly looking black vorsit. The body was still warm and Dr. Howe was immediately sent for, but his services were not needed.

Coroner Carrick was notified and decided to have an analysis of the contents of the
